The Leviathan of Shows.

The Great New York and New Orleans Zoological and Equestrian Exposition at Knoxville, Aug. 19th, 1874. This grand aggregation of Zoological and arenic wonders will appear in Knoxville, Wednesday August, 19th. It will be remembered that last season it achieved a most brilliant success, being the only institution of such magnitude that ever crossed the continent to the far off shores of California, where it met with a perfect ovation wherever it appeared. This is always an évidence of the merits of an exhibition of this character. But since last summer its proportions have been enlarged to gigantic dimensions

It now requires one third more cars to transport it-it has one third more dens of animals—spreads hundreds of feet more canvass, and a grand triple circus co apany. The business thus far this season has increased in proportion as to its magnitude, and the success of this great establishmen is assured.

We append the following hearty and cheerful endorsement from a valuable St. Louis Exchange: "It is the most gigantic affair of the age, having an immense oblong tent for the arena and others much larger than heretofore have been used by similar institutions. It comprises within its varied departments a dazzling splendor of arenic talent. The instructive wonders of animated nature and attractive curiosities of an aquarium; the principal feature of which is the monster Sea Lion, Nep tune, a magnificent specimen of its class, astonishing all beholders as a representative of the wonders of the great deep. The thousands of pleasing attractions of its many departments will greatly amuse, instruct, and benefit the public taste for a moral show, and will at once display the wonderful accomplishments of genius and art.

The New York and New Orleans Exposition is one of the latest show triumphs in which the splendors of the middle ages are equalled if not eclipsed. The genius, tact and excellent management of its young who can dispute the palm with him on the continent. A larger list of artists, male and female, were never exhibited for one price of admission, and a more costly mounting for a circus never has been seen, while a better selection of animals and curiosities cannot be found on the globe.
